

Biden's New Gas Study Is Vulnerable to Trump

Media Mentions

December 19, 2024 | Landmark | 1 minute read | Washington, DC

Bracewell's Scott Segal told Landmark he expects the Trump administration will withdraw the Department of Energy's LNG report "to remove any patina of authoritativeness it might have."

The report will undergo a public notice and comment period, which Segal noted will give interested parties the opportunity to question "some of the more obvious flaws in the document."

"One thing that should not be tolerated would be the use of this report in future legal challenges on whether export approvals are in the public interest," he said.

Related People

Scott H. Segal

Partner

WASHINGTON, DC

+1.202.828.5845

scott.segal@bracewell.com

Related Industries

Energy

Related Practices

Government Relations

Strategic Communications