

Energy Regulatory Duo Jumps to Bracewell

Media Mentions

June 29, 2022 | National Law Journal | 1 minute read | Washington, DC

Bracewell's newest partners, Catherine Little and Annie Cook, discussed with The National Law Journal their decision to join the firm's energy regulatory practice.

"Bracewell is really a market leader—one of the world's leading oil and gas regulatory practices. We felt like this was a perfect platform," Little said.

Little added that their practice aligns with Bracewell's strength in the energy sector. "We are now at a firm that substantially, geographically and strategically can provide our clients with an expanded platform," she said.

Their move, Cook said, coincides with the industry's emphasis on energy transition, so the timing is good.

Click here to read the entire NLJ article.

Related People

Catherine D. Little

Partner

WASHINGTON, DC

+1.202.828.7403

catherine.little@bracewell.com

Annie Cook

Partner

WASHINGTON, DC

+1.202.828.7404

annie.cook@bracewell.com

Related Industries

Energy

Infrastructure

Related Practices

Energy Regulatory

Oil & Gas

Pipeline and LNG Safety and

Regulation