With market anxiety surrounding Donald Trump's impending tariffs, the president is now weighing a delay on implementation from February 1 to March 1 and considering whether to include oil in the tariffs.

This is a “sign that the message is getting through to him,” Bracewell’s Josh Zive told Yahoo! Finance.

“There’s a real tension point between the tariff policy priorities of this administration and the energy policy priorities of this administration,” Zive added, noting Trump “has got to find a way to solve that tension.”
