

It's Crunch Time and Biden's Climate Gambit Faces Steep Hurdles

Media Mentions

May 22, 2021 | The New York Times | 1 minute read | Washington, DC

Bracewell's Scott Segal recently discussed with New York Times reporter Lisa Friedman the clean electricity standard in President Joe Biden's climate plan.

Segal said Democrats could undermine their efforts on climate change by pushing legislation through without bipartisan support.

"If they try to jam a clean electricity standard through on reconciliation, I think they would likely lose a strong handful of moderate Democrats, and they'd have no chance to pick up moderate Republicans," he said.

The clean electricity standard would require power companies to gradually ratchet up the amount of electricity they generate from wind, solar and other sources until they're no longer emitting carbon dioxide.

Click here to read more from The New York Times.

Related People

Scott H. Segal
Partner
WASHINGTON, DC
+1.202.828.5845
scott.segal@bracewell.com

Related Industries

Energy

Related Practices

Environment, Lands and

Resources

Government Relations

Strategic Communications