

Lee Zeldin, Trump's EPA Pick, Brings a Moderate Face to a Radical Game Plan

Media Mentions

November 13, 2024 | Inside Climate News | 1 minute read | Washington, DC

With the selection of former Rep. Lee Zeldin (R-NY) as President-elect Donald Trump's new head of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), Bracewell's Frank Maisano, described to Inside Climate News that Zeldin "is a savvy political operator."

"He wasn't particularly well known for taking in-depth positions on EPA issues, but I'm not surprised that he gets a position like this," Maisano said. "I'm certain what he'll do is be a good leader, and a good spokesman for the president's energy and environment agenda."

Related People

Frank V. Maisano
Senior Principal
WASHINGTON, DC
+1.202.828.5864
frank.maisano@bracewell.com

Related Industries

Energy

Related Practices

Government Relations
Strategic Communications