

Transition Concerns Speed Fossil Fuel Development

Media Mentions

June 18, 2021 | Energy Voice | 1 minute read | London

---

Ronen Lazarovitch shared his perspective with Energy Voice on why governments should maximize development of resources as energy demand shifts away from fossil fuels.

“Governments don’t know whether hydrocarbons will be viable, given changes in ESG attitudes and pressure around the world to accelerate the energy transition. Those governments worried about stranded assets are going to take a view of how to incentivize development,” said Lazarovitch.

“If you take the view that it will take some time to cut demand, then this is a time for opportunities,” he added. “It’s a time to go to those countries with worries about stranded assets, as there are likely to be incentives up for grabs.”

Click here to read more from *Energy Voice*.

Related People

Ronen “Ro” Lazarovitch

Partner

LONDON

+44.(0).207.448.4213

ro.lazarovitch@bracewell.com

Related Industries

Energy

Related Practices

Environmental, Social & Governance \(ESG\)

Oil & Gas

Upstream Transactions

Renewable Energy