David is a paralegal in the firm's intellectual property practice group. He focuses on assisting lawyers with the preparation and prosecution of domestic and foreign trademarks and other related intellectual property matters, including the handling of trademark renewal and maintenance deadlines, trademark oppositions and trademark search analysis.

David also assists with monitoring and maintaining daily docket requirements for deadlines in the US Patent and Trademark Office and foreign trademark offices and coordinates the filing and prosecution of trademark applications with foreign associates.

Prior to working with trademarks, David was a patent paralegal for seven years, assisting with the preparation and prosecution patents for clients in the telecommunications industry.
