

Bracewell has extensive healthcare litigation experience. We represent some of the largest publicly traded hospital companies in the United States — a distinction held by only a handful of firms — as well as pharmaceutical companies, medical device manufacturers, long-term care providers, physician practices, and providers of laboratory and diagnostic services, durable medical equipment and various ancillary services.

Our team of experienced lawyers advises healthcare providers on a broad range of litigation, regulatory and compliance matters, including:

- healthcare fraud
- managed care litigation
- government enforcement and investigations by state and federal agencies
- fraudulent lien suits
- insurance/payor reimbursement disputes
- trade secrets litigation
- antitrust and unfair competition claims
- trademark and copyright infringement
- securities litigation
- commercial contract disputes
- real estate and construction disputes

Bracewell has one of the few healthcare litigation teams in Texas that solely represents healthcare providers versus payors in managed care litigation, giving us unparalleled understanding of the legal challenges unique to the healthcare industry.
