Kema Ogden is an innovative business owner, entrepreneur, and philanthropist taking the cannabis and health industry by storm. With the vision to create a holistic approach to health care, Kema became Nevada's first Black female dispensary owner in 2014 when she co-founded Global Harmony LLC, the parent company of Top Notch The Health Center. What drives Kema? The opportunity to serve and create a culture of positivity for the community. Kema sat down with hosts Dee Martin, Yasmin Nelson, and Amber Dodds to discuss some of the most pressing issues currently facing the cannabis industry — including addressing gaps in legislation, advocating for expungement of arrests for certain types of cannabis offenses, and changing the narrative on cannabis. You won't want to miss this episode with the woman creating history and shaping policy in the cannabis and health industry!
